

Death of Corry Barbour.

~~At 10 o'clock yesterday morning occurred~~
the death of Corry Barbour, one of the old and prominent residents of this county, at his home just north of the city. Heart disease was the cause of his death. He had been unwell five or six days, but death had not been anticipated.

The deceased was born at Champion, Jefferson county, New York, in the year 1807, and was therefore 72 years of age at the time of his death. In the fall of 1817 his father, Daniel Barbour, emigrated with his family to the Wabash, coming by way of Orleans, N. Y., arriving in Vigo county the last of November. They first settled in Fayette township, near New Goshen. The land owned by deceased, on which stood the old homestead, was part of a quarter section bought by his father in 1829. Mr. Barbour, Sr., came to this county in company with Dr. Durkee, for whom Durkees Ferry was named. The Durkees and Barbours were the first settlers of Fayette township.

The deceased was a farmer all his life, packed pork occasionally, and in the old times made many trips to New Orleans, shipping pork, corn and hay. He was a careful and successful business man and a valued citizen. He was at one time a justice of the peace.

Mr. Barbour leaves three brothers and three sisters to survive him. He has been the father of two children, both of whom are now dead.

The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.